Of Northern Extraction

Over a thirty year period as a professional artist, Edward Epp has been consumed by a passion for painting. He has become known as a landscape painter, but the terms of the relationship between landscape and his practice as an artist are complex and evolving. The work represented in this exhibition, Of Northern Extraction, summarizes the last four years of his artistic journey, and speaks to the experience of life in a remote northern community. Epp has traveled extensively and has lived and painted in Liberia, Botswana, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia.

Under the Weather

Under the Weather: the Rural Scene is a thematic exhibit of oil-on-panel works by Alberta artist Keith Harder and conceived as a single project that considers the shifting realities of rural life on the Prairies. The recurring motif of farms beneath an expansive sky offers an unexpectedly fresh look at a kind of landscape that provides a surprising resonance for those who are acquainted with the prairie as well as opening a window for those who see it as exotic.
