Stage North show supports cancer Relay for Life

By Melanie Robinson

FORT ST. JOHN – Tickets for Stage North's upcoming improv show, Spontaneous Combustion, are more than half sold and the date for the show is approaching quickly.

The show, which combines as a fundraiser for the Canadian Cancer Society, promises to be a fun-filled evening with dinner and a night of comedy.

"It's kind of an official launch for the Relay for Life campaign," said Relay for Life coordinator Shaun Whynacht.

"Even though we've been doing it since November, for Fort St. John this is really the time that people get their gears in motion and put the pedal to the metal. This is when we expect to see the enthusiasm pick up."

The improv for the evening will be 'Whose Line is it, Anyway' to a tea, said Kris Przednowek with Stage North.

He added there was no hesitation when they were asked to do something for the Canadian Cancer Society.

"Ask anyone in the group that's going to be on stage that night, everyone's lives is affected by cancer," he said.

"If we can create a great night, a fun night that goes to raise awareness and raise money for cancer and cancer research we think that's a bonus besides the fact it's another chance for us to perform.

"We're always looking for another chance to perform but to do this show in particular was an immediate yes, there was no question that we wouldn't do it."

FEB 2008 DWP

Whynacht said the reason the CCS chose improv was because they wanted to keep the event lighthearted.

"Laughter is the best medicine," he said.

"Everybody that I've talked to that has been through any kind of cancer treatment or has dealt with cancer in their family has said that 80 per cent of it has been pretty much positive thinking, laughter and just keeping your spirits high. No better way to keep spirits high than to bring some laughter."

Spontaneous Combustion will be taking place at the Northern Grand on April 11, kicking off at 7 p.m. with dinner, followed by the show.

Whynacht reminds the public that all are welcome, even if you haven't been directly touched by cancer.

"Even if you're coming out and haven't been affected, you're just supporting those who have," he said.

Tickets are $40, with tables of eight still available for the show and can be purchased at the Visitor Information Centre.
