

School daze

By CAROLINE WOODWARD

Had a really good report from the girls in the drama class who just came back from Vancouver.

They were very busy the whole week, rising early for the lectures, classes and at night, watching the plays entered in the B C Drama Festival. The long weekend worked in nicely for them as far as the extra day of rest was concerned! Their main concern now is to catch up on a semester-size week of homework, I guess. Nevertheless, a trip like this is very worthwhile for the students involved and the rest of us who hear all about it. The girls' main comment was "We learned so much" and I think that speaks for itself. Just because we live this far away from large centres doesn't mean that we should be entirely cut off. The money for the trip was raised entirely by the class (thank-you Mr Broadhurst for the use of your car-wash) and also its carnival grant.
